2011 Black Family Technology Awareness Week

BDPA-New York invites you to join us at our events planned as a part of 2011 Black Family Technology Awareness Week (BFTAW). Black Family Technology Awareness Week, or BFTAW, is a national public awareness campaign designed to encourage more African Americans to incorporate technology into their daily lives. By showcasing science and technology in a fun and interactive way, our chapter endeavors to motivate more minority students to pursue careers in these fields.

It will also be an exciting time for students and families as they spend a full day immersed in a variety of fun and interactive workshops. The event, scheduled for Saturday, February 26, 2011 from 10:30 AM to 3:30 PM, will be held at the Abundant Life Christian Center, located at 32 East 98th Street between East New York and Sutter Avenues in Brooklyn, NY. The theme is "Educate to Innovate." There will be refreshments and giveaways provided by the Yahoo! Employee Foundation

Cyber Security/Cyber Bullying

Presented by Denise Hamilton

This workshop will inform the community on the importance of cyber security and safety when browsing the Internet. It will also serve to increase the safety awareness and self confidence of youth whenever they go online, by addressing cyber bullying, and enhance their ability to recognize dangers on the Internet.

Careers in the Gaming Industry

Presented by Sean R. Scott, CEO, SoulRealis LLC

This workshop will provide a behind the scenes overview of the Gaming Industry, as well as the skills/education needed to pursue a career in the industry.

Communication is More Than 160 Characters

Presented by Laquette R. Holmes, M.A., R.R.T.

BDPA Launches New Website

National BDPA has re-launched the national website, located at www.bdpa.org. The new website, which launched in early January, includes a newer design, and changes or new features in the following areas: member profiles, member directory, events, news, blogs, wikis, photo galleries, social networking, etc. All chapters of BDPA now have their own page on the National website, accessible by members only. BDPA New York encourages all members to update your profiles and become acquainted with the new website.

If you have not been on the website yet, and are a member, you must reset your password, which will be sent to the email address that is registered in the National database. If you are currently inactive you will have to pay membership dues and create a new account on the website. Visit the tutorial on the website, at www.bdpa.org/?page=HowToTutorial to learn more about how to navigate the new site. For any issues or questions navigating the new site, contact the National VP of Membership Management, Mildred Allen, at vpmm@bdpa.org.

This workshop will discuss the effects of electronic communication on standardized grammar.

BDPA Information Technology (IT) Showcase

Presentations by BDPA Delaware Chapter and BDPA New York Chapter Students

Student presenters will showcase their research on advanced computing topics such as smart toys, genetic algorithms, and wearable computing technologies.

IT Careers in the Air Force

Presented by Heather Roberts, (ret) MAJ, USAFA

This workshop is designed to provide an overview on the Communications and Information career field for those interested in military service.

Financial Literacy and Consumer Resources

Presented by National Association of Black Accountants (NABA) - NY Chapter

Volunteers Wanted

The BFTAW Committee is looking for volunteers to assist with greeting, registration, and photography at the event.

Weekly planning meetings are Tuesdays throughout February, at 9:00 pm via Conference Call:

President's Message

Dear Members,

I cannot believe that it is already February and we are celebrating Black History Month. This is also the month that BDPA New York will host our annual Black Family Technology Awareness Event, in recognition of Black Family Technology Awareness Week. I am so excited and looking forward to seeing you on Feb 26th at the Abundant Life Christian Center in Brooklyn, NY, as we share the importance of Education, Science, Technology, Engineering and Math Careers with the community.

Last month, we had a very successful Meet and Greet on January 19th at the Empire Hotel Rooftop Lounge in New York. Members and guests had the opportunity to meet and mingle with myself, and the rest of our 2011 Executive Board, and learn more about what our chapter has planned for 2011. Check out page 5 for photos.

I wanted to remind everyone that we are actively seeking volunteers for our committees and 2011 events and initiatives. We need volunteers to lead and/or serve on committees in the following areas: Education, Membership, Community Service and Fundraising. I hope that many of you step up to volunteer, to speak and present at our program meetings, or to mentor our IT Showcase students.

About BDPA

Founded in 1975 by Earl Pace and the late David Wimberly, BDPA (formerly Black Data Processing Associates) is a premier networking organization for minorities and IT professionals alike. BDPA is a global, member focused organization that positions its members at the forefront of the IT industry. We are committed to delivering value to our members strategic partners, and to the community. BDPA-NY aspires to be a leading chapter in the national BDPA organization. Our members include individuals who are employed with corporations, government agencies, educational institutions, entrepreneurs, as well as high school and college students.

The New York Chapter is the 5th largest chapter of BDPA. Chartered in September 1982, our chapter has successfully reached out to our community through networking, education programs, seminars, workshops, and the annual conferences. Also, we serve as community partner for the Community Technology Centers and engage everyone to learn about technology, careers, and higher education.
